Known Through The Church

Don Hatch

The addressing of the world with the gospel of Christ is known as “a stewardship” In a household there are those who have the charge of being a steward. This individual takes charge of various and sundry items (Mat 20:8). He must be able to give full accounting for all he has done. Unfaithfulness is a dreadful accusation to a steward (Lk 19:12-27; Mat 25:33-46; Mat 21:33-46; Lk 12:42). Accordingly, the affairs of his master are his sole concern and all responsibility is vested in him. Christians are stewards of the gospel and fellow-laborers in the mysteries of God (1 Cor 4:1-5; 9:17; 1 Tim 1:4; Tit 1:7). Scrupulously caring for the gospel which is entrusted requires that it must be dispensed faithfully as directed by the Master [Jesus Christ]. The gospel teaches of amazing grace (Jn 1:17; Eph 2:-10; 1 Pet 4:10). As guardians the steward is always vigilant. A steward benefits all who will heed his teachings. The mysteries are given by revelation, unknown until revealed and divinely communicated to a steward. The word-transmission is the key to Verbal Plenary Inspiration. The Bible insists that its stewardship was not received by human origin.

New Testament writers connect the teaching of Bible truth with the Holy Spirit’s inspiration (2 Tim 3:16, 17). Special emphasis is placed on “words”. Bible teachings are not “mere suggestions”, but rather divinely guided words wherein each has been carefully selected to manifest the meaning God had in mind. Stewards teach words which have specific meanings. When read, individuals can perceive the insight into the mysteries of Christ [things revealed, mysteries are not items which cannot be understood]. Christ is the substance of the mysteries. In the Old Testament they were “shadows”, whereas in the New Testament they are the essence (Heb 10:1). Christ, His life, death, resurrection, ascension and being seated at the Father’s right hand are the glorious fulfillment of the mysteries. The church is to take the gospel into the far-flung corners of the world because of her stewardship (Mat 28:18-20; Mk 16:15, 16; Lk 24:44-50). Paul proclaims that all can perceive his insight into the mysteries. The role of the church is to manifest that the Gentiles are fellow-heirs, fellow-members of Christ’s body, and fellow-partakers of the promises which are found in the gospel of Jesus Christ. Now known to the “sons of men” [everyone] demonstrates that the Spirit has unveiled and revealed God’s will for mankind. The Old Testament writers were limited as to the meaning of what they said; angels wanted to know about future blessings, now known to the church. They are incredible wonders of God’s infinite blessings (1 Pet 1:10-13). What the prophets could not make clear concerning the coming of the Messiah, the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, the old theocratic kingdom completion and the rise of a new body of believers in the Kingdom of Christ, which would include Gentiles and Jews is now known, held in the care and custody of the stewards of the New Testament (1 Cor 4:1-5).

Nothing makes prophecy more understandable than fulfillment. The church of Christ is that fulfillment and lives in the era of illumination able to set forth with great clarity the meaning and application of the new order of salvation, worship and holy aspects of the life required by God for them (1 Pet 1:13-25). Unveiling the mystery manifests the alliance wherein all live in peace with one another (Eph 2:11-23; 4:1-16). The complete and permanent fusion of all into a spiritual union forms the elements of the inheritance and how mankind is to behave in the house of God (1 Tim 3:14-16). Being a part of the body of Christ is a realization of the promise made to Abraham (Rom 4:16-25; 1 Cor 12:12-30). Paul wanted the church to be intimate with the gospel. There is no room for arrogance. Humility is the constitution for an ambassador of Christ (2 Cor 5:11-21).

Stewards are those whom the Master has entrusted with the oversight of preserving order and decorum in the great house. They must from time to time give an accounting of the Master’s possessions as stewards (Mat 25:14-30). The term “caring for the mysteries” is that the stewards will be “watchful” and implies that there is a charge given to them for educating. The steward is responsible to define the labor and to demonstrate how to be “just” (Mat 20:8). The steward is never to take advantage of the Master’s affairs. If found unfaithful charges would be forthcoming and penalties assessed (Lk 16:1-13). The parable of the pounds signifies the awesomeness of being in charge of the things of God (Lk 19:11-28). The parable of the wicked stewards who killed other servants and eventually took the life of the heir manifest that those who apostatize lose all they sought to gain (Mat 19:33-46). Accordingly those who have charge of the gospel (Jude 3) manage the affairs of the Lord using their talents to the advantage of the kingdom. It is a wondrous blessing to serve the Lord. In the parables of Jesus He directs the disciple to accomplish in a graceful and dignified manner His work (Mat 25:14-30).

FAMILY CARE
A Message from Our Shepherds

All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, thoroughly equipped for every good work. 2 Timothy 3:16-17 NKJV

The Belt Line Road Church of Christ is a good supporter of Mission Printing, furnishing volunteers, supplying finances, and offering prayers to its betterment. In 2009, Mission Printing shipped its first ocean container of tracts in response to an unbelievable 400% increase in postage rates. God answered our prayers then by removing a very expensive roadblock, our distribution costs. We knew there were risks involved in shipping such large quantities of tracts to one area. We evaluated each risk and found that we really had no other choice to keep Mission Printing in a normal business status except utilize the containers. One of those risks was clearing the containers through Customs of each foreign country. This task is much more difficult in some countries than others. Research and investigation of shipping costs, of foreign government rules, of domestic weight limits, and etc., goes into each shipment. A domestic "Forwarding Company" must be trusted to bring an empty container to our dock for our volunteers to load and then forward the filled container to a ship bound for a foreign destination. An international "Shipping Company" delivers it to a Clearing Agent, who will take the container paperwork through all the required Custom rules of that country and pay for the various fees. After receiving clearance for the container it is trucked to its final destination, a church or preaching school. This is where the Mission Printing Volunteer Distribution Manager oversees the proper distribution of all the cargo to those who need it most through visitors, lectureships, preachers, seminars, and workshops. I have tried to explain the highlights of the process that must be done for each shipment. On Monday, Oct. 28, Mission Printing plans to ship #11 container, even though #9 is still in controversy in the Nigerian port. The difficulties have been many and very trying to several including me. Each week that goes by, we are charged an increased fee over the past week for demurrage (container rental and storage space for the container). This challenge can be overcome through God's help. I am asking you to continue to pray that the container will be cleared soon and that thousands of Nigerians will be able to read about God's word. I am emailing a copy of this article to many in Nigeria, asking for their prayers as well.

Colossians 4:12 Epaphras, who is one of you, a bondservant of Christ, greets you, always laboring fervently for you in prayers, that you may stand perfect and complete in all the will of God.

James 5:16 Confess your trespasses to one another, and pray for one another, that you may be healed. The effective, fervent prayer of a righteous man avails much.

Praying for a successful distribution of tracts in Nigeria soon,

Richard Renfro

In The Beginning

The first verse of the Bible is an endearing statement to believers. It is a favorite passage for children to learn and recite. The creative acts of God demonstrate that God is Almighty. This simple statement has buried within it a majestic and multifaceted presentation of the case for creation in opposition to evolution.

Scholars from many backgrounds have hotly debated Genesis one, even changed the wording to make their point. There are not periods of creation set forward in this section, nor anywhere else. Novel ideas about creation are unworthy of consideration. Five times the Bible sets forth "in the beginning" and a grammatical examination of these texts teach one beginning (Gen 1:1; Jer 26:1; 28:1; 49:34; Rev 3:14). The prophets teach only one beginning. From the moment God began to speak the earth into existence until "God saw everything that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. And there was evening and there was morning, the sixth day" (Gen 1:31) was creation. On the seventh day God rested from His creation. Thus, a system was created of earth, moon, sun and stars (universe). The Hebrew word bara (created) points to the teaching that all were created by God's word (created-out-of-nothing). "Created" clearly teaches there were no pre-created materials that God used. The Genesis text indicates God commanded and all came into existence (Psm 148:5). God is always the subject of the verb "create". God, who existed eternally, brought all things into existence that previously had no existence.

The simplicity of the creation account does not allow for word changes and renditions which take the concept of the teaching of "Ex nihilo" (Latin phrase created out of nothing) out of the concept of God's creation. Ex nihilo means creation out of nothing as opposed to creatio ex material (created out of pre-existing materials). Creation began with God. Popular mistranslations seek to shear God of His prominent role as Creator of all. Reading a literal translation (such as the ASV 1901) demonstrates alternative translations are totally out of place. Unfortunately many modern translations subordinate and mask the real emphasis thus promoting false teachings. The Greek Old Testament (Septuagint) without equivocation renders Genesis one in an absolute sense of God creating out of nothing.

Genesis is a profound revelation of God's creation and work of setting into place a universe (not a chaos) with all the work done in six days (not long periods). God created, not refreshed what had previously been in existence. What confidence is there in a teaching of a previous universe that had to be rebuilt? Such is a dissatisfying rendition of the word of God. Such a disagreeable doctrine strikes at the basis of the meaning of God. God never fails. God has never failed. God will not fail. There was one creation and only one. God did not need to borrow some pre-created material to create our universe. God spoke all into existence exactly as Genesis proclaims. The "gap theory" remains a theory, unconfirmed and doubtful. Confidence in the Bible does not arise from tormented translators who wish to change the Bible to meet modernists' concepts. The argument for creatio ex nihilo (first cause) is everything that begins to exist has a cause, the universe began to exist, and therefore, the universe must have a cause. That cause is God.
